Sony joins the ranks of Vista software as a publisher as Zaurus and Nutzer Linux distros are now available Sony joins the ranks of Vista software as a publisher as Zaurus and Nutzer Linux distros are now available Some remarkable rumors are circulating the Web regarding an expected summer release of a beta version of the next version of the Mac OS, named "Snow Leopard", due to be released this year. However, the official confirmation to this type of "rumors" has just appeared, when the the developers of the Nutzer and Zaurus Linux distributions announced that they will have the pleasure of distributing this new version of the Mac OS. While this first beta version of Snow Leopard may appear when it is released, beta versions are not really known to be stable and even official versions may receive some changes before becoming the final ones. So, the two most interesting Linux distros will soon be the ones most likely to be able to distribute the new Mac OS, due to be released at the beginning of 2010. However, Nutzer and Zaurus are not the only software developers to announce the release of beta versions of the next Mac OS. According to a report published by seznam.cz, "Apple insiders" reported that a beta version of Snow Leopard, the new version of Mac OS X (most common name given to the Mac OS), would be released "this year." In a later article, seznam.cz also reported that an official statement from a "Mac OS developer" confirmed that Snow Leopard would be released "this year." This situation was made possible by the release of the next version of the

Mac OS that was announced in April 2009 by Apple, and also by the "officially registered startup" of the Zaurus Linux developers. So, it looks like the two developers of Nutzer and Zaurus Linux distros could be the ones releasing the new Mac OS that is expected to be released this year. That could mean that the both Linux distros will have the pleasure of distributing and testing the next Mac OS. So far, no news regarding the release schedule of the new Mac OS has been released. Also, no news regarding the release of the Zaurus and Nutzer Linux distros has been released. However, all of these reports make more people believe that the summer release of the next version of the Mac OS is coming very soon. The two most important Linux distros are now among the software developers
