Here's the official synopsis for the film: In the shadow of the late 19th-century Fenian uprising, a young farmer, Henry Crawford, witnesses the brutal murder of a woman by a 'hooded figure,' a phenomenon that seems to be afflicting all the citizens of the desolate village of Harsun. Magnolol and honokiol inhibit growth of hepatoma and human breast cancer cell lines. In this study, we investigated the effect of honokiol, a lignan isolated from the bark of Magnolia officinalis, and magnolol, a main lignan of the heartwood of the same plant, on the cell growth of human hepatoma (SMMC-7721) and breast cancer (MCF-7) cells. The inhibition concentration (IC50) for honokiol and magnolol on cell growth was determined using 3-(4,5-dimethylthiazol-2-yl)-2,5-diphenyltetrazolium bromide assay. Treatment with these two compounds induced apoptosis, as determined by the oligonucleosomal DNA fragmentation, which led to the degradation of cytoskeleton, induction of caspase activity and the enhancement of Bax and reduction of Bcl-2 gene expression. The observation on anti-tumor activity suggests that honokiol and magnolol may have preventive or therapeutic effects in the treatment of cancers.
